Applications should be made to the Rev. Sec. the Rev. C. H. Hocking, 33 Robinson Road.

STRANGE INCIDENT AT POKFULAM.

Before Mr. Wood at the Police Magistrate's Court this afternoon, a Chinese named Lo Kwan was charged with removing a dead body without a permit and with leaving it in an unauthorised place at Pokfulam.

Mr. Fletcher Smith defended. A Chinese constable said that the man died in the quarters he occupied from an illness lasting three days. The body was taken out and buried according to the instructions of the defendant.

Inspector P. O'Sullivan said an informant told an Indian constable that there was a dead body at some constable quarters at Pokfulam, but when the constable got there the body had gone. The police made inquiries and found that the body had been buried on the hillside. The case was remanded until Monday afternoon.

THE FLYING MEN.

A War Story.

Orders had been received at But that an "excursion" of aeroplanes should leave immediately under sealed orders. It was not the kind of day on which one would like to go aloft. A gale of wind was blowing up from the south-west, bringing with it an occasional downpour of rain, which was not very encouraging for a preliminary test of the motor for slipped on the sudden ground, and only by extreme agility saved himself from being decapitated by the propeller. When they pulled him out his hand was covered with blood. It was obvious that he could not leave with the aeroplanes.

They looked round for a substitute. The only man available was a young reservist, a typical mechanic from a motor-car factory, but with very little experience of aerial navigation. "Well, we must take him," said the lieutenant to his adjutant, "although I'm afraid he will be worse than useless when he gets up into that gale. You just look after him a little, and try to save his coat if you can."

"Ten minutes later they were ready to go off. "Did you give any good advice to the new man?" inquired the lieutenant. "Yes, none whatever," he replied. "I told him to go, and he went."

THE HOTEL SHOOTING
CASE.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Before Mr. Melbourne at the Magistrate's Court this morning, the hearing was resumed in the charge against Ernest Magnus Almborg, an engineer employed at the Swedish Trading Company, Hongkong, with maliciously wounding and causing grievous bodily harm to Signalman Barry by shooting him with a revolver, and with having in his possession a revolver and ten rounds of ammunition without the necessary permit.

Mr. King, Assistant Superintendent of Police, prosecuted and Mr. Lewis, of Messrs. Johnson, Stokes and Martin represented the defendant.

Leung Hing, No. 1 room boy at the King Edward Hotel Annex, said the defendant occupied Room 19. On Oct. 6th he saw defendant about 2 p.m. at his room. Two sailors were in the room with him.

Later on he saw a sailor lying in the passage between the Rooms 17 and 18. He could not recognise the sailor. When he (witness) heard the row he went downstairs and reported it to the European in charge of the public bar.

Mr. Sayer, formerly Assistant Superintendent of Police, said that he saw defendant at the Central Police Station. A revolver was handed to witness that afternoon. It was loaded in three chambers. He cautioned the defendant at 3.30 p.m., and a statement was taken from him.

Mr. Lewis said he did not know if that was regular. The man was not changed, and he made a statement at a time when he was very drunk.

Witness said defendant was cautioned. Mr. Lewis said he objected to the whole of witness's evidence. His client did not remember ever seeing Mr. Sayer. Witness, replying to Mr. King, said that defendant was not sober when he made his statement, but he was very well able to understand what was said.

Mr. Lewis: The defendant was very, very much under the influence of liquor? Witness: I should say not. Mr. Lewis: Then your evidence is different to every body else's concerned in the case. Possibly.

He was sitting in a chair?—Yes. He was rolling from side to side?—No. He was able to sit up and take notice?—Yes.

Do you think it is a proper thing for a police officer to take a statement from a man in that condition?—I have already given evidence as to his condition. What time was the statement taken?—Immediately after he was brought to the station.

Luai Kau, employed at the King Edward Hotel, said at 1.30 p.m. on Oct. 6th the defendant brought in two sailors. Defendant asked witness to unlock two bottles and he did so. Half an hour later he saw one of the sailors lying unconscious in the passage. The other sailor was still in Almborg's room. Afterwards Almborg went down the stairs and he saw defendant holding a revolver. The latter assisted the sailor in the passage to his feet.

Witness said he heard two reports from a gun but he did not go into the room. The reports took place before the men left. Defendant asked witness to unlock two bottles and he did so. Half an hour later he saw one of the sailors lying unconscious in the passage. The other sailor was still in Almborg's room. Afterwards Almborg went down the stairs and he saw defendant holding a revolver. The latter assisted the sailor in the passage to his feet.

Sergeant O'Connell said he was in the Alexandra Buildings when he heard police whistles blow. He went down into the Victoria Road and saw a crowd near the Hongkong Hotel. Two sailors were in the middle of the crowd, "pretty drunk." He searched Blandford and found a gold watch, a tin of tobacco and a bunch of keys. He sent Blandford to the Police Station and Barry for medical aid. Witness saw defendant in the King Edward Hotel. His face was covered with blood, witness also went to defendant's room which he found in a great disorder.

Sergeant of the Revenue Department testified that he heard an alarm in Des Voeux Road. He afterwards went to the King Edward Hotel where the defendant was pointed out as the man concerned in a shooting affair. He took defendant to the Police Station.

Chief Detective Inspector Munro said he also visited the defendant's room in the Hotel Annex and found on the floor two shells near the entrance to the room. On the inside he found two bullets. Above a chest of drawers he found seven cartridges. He found two bullet holes on the wall. Witness put in the statement made by the prisoner a day later as follows:—"I didn't know these two gentlemen before they came into my room. One of them hit me on the nose and made it bleed. One of them twisted my hand and the ring on my little finger came loose. My body shows many marks. I might have thought they were going to finish me. I staggered to my desk and took out a revolver. Then I told the men to quit from the room. One of them got hold of a chair and to scare them I fired. I don't know if I struck them or not. It was not my intention to harm them, only to scare them. I threw the revolver on the desk and ran out—passing them on my way to the bar."

In a second statement defendant said the revolver belonged to him and that he got it in 1904 or 1905 from a friend at Messrs. A. S. Watson and Co. Lewis on behalf of the defendant testified that he believed his statement. The object of the Legislature in the Arms Ordinance was to prevent Chinese from importing arms into China. Quite a number of persons in the Colony did not even require to have a license from the Captain Superintendent of Police and it would not be very difficult for any European to secure a license. And so the charge of possession was quite a trivial one.

With regard to the other charge nobody regretted more than his client what had happened. Whether the shot was fired by him or by some one else or whatever happened he very much regretted it. The Magistrate had to be satisfied that defendant did wilfully fire the revolver with intent to cause grievous bodily harm. He was also to be satisfied beyond the shadow of a doubt that the shot was fired by defendant. Assuming for the moment that the Magistrate found that he had to be satisfied that the shot was fired with intent to wound or cause grievous bodily harm. From the evidence apart from the statement of the defendant himself there was not a shred of evidence on which he could rely, that the shot was fired by the defendant or that he had any thing to do with it. The two men had given their evidence quite frankly and had admitted that they did not very well remember all that happened. They
